COURSE DESCRIPTION
In treating today’s periodontal patient successfully, the clinician must customize a treatment plan that goes beyond the removal of plaque and calculus. Achieving excellent clinical outcomes involves assessing for systemic issues, communicating and customizing home care according to the patient’s level of understanding and ability to perform home care procedures, and choosing appropriate adjuncts to care. In this course, we will explore the multifaceted treatment planning approach, including scheduling and coding. We will also discuss the assisted model of hygiene care and effective instrument sharpening. We will also explore strategies for dealing with refusal of definitive care.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon completion of this course, the participant will be able to:

- Understand the factors involved in periodontal breakdown
- Explore the most prominent systemic disease interrelationships
- Choose adjuncts to care based on severity and appropriateness
- Develop better clinical protocol
- Customize home care modalities
- Understand which codes are most appropriate for particular case types
- Understand how instrument sharpening can be accomplished easily and effectively
- Develop the best approach when patients refuse definitive care for periodontal disease
